Jeffersonia dubia alba

Exhibited by

Cyril Lafong

What a fabulous plant! Cyril does it again. We have seen this Jeffersonia in previous years and wondered at its beauty every time. Each year it just gets better! This year was its year and it won the top award. Mainly blue in the wild, it is found in Manchuria and Korea, it is a member of the Berberis family. Imagine a bush with flowers like these! So taken was I with the plants and various committee meetings, not to mention the sun, I forgot to take a picture of Cyril. I did manage a sneaky picture of him talking to Fred Hunt, while I was hiding behind a white Daphne mezereum at Stirling. Well done again Cyril.
